

Wrap – Up: Session 1

We've covered a lot of territory...

- What is good clinical teaching?
- GNOME: A framework for educational planning
- Assessing the learner's needs
- Setting objectives for effective teaching
- A Methods "sampler"
 - Active learning
 - Modeling
 - One Minute Preceptor
 - Learning Theory
 - Gist Statement
- Promoting Resilience

The background of the image is a scenic landscape featuring a range of mountains under a warm, golden sunset sky. The sun is positioned on the right side, partially obscured by a mountain peak, creating a strong glow and long shadows across the terrain. The foreground shows dark, silhouetted mountain ridges, while the middle ground and background consist of layered mountain ranges fading into the distance.

It takes a deep commitment to change and an even deeper commitment to grow.

A Commitment to Change

- Take 5 to 10 minutes to think about your experience. What ideas appealed to you the most; were there any surprises?
- Name one thing you will STOP doing or START doing as a result of this session.
- Identify 1 to 3 specific, measurable changes (objectives) you will make in your teaching as a result of this workshop.
- Email completed form to philip.day@umassmed.edu TODAY
- Form will be sent back to you soon after the workshop (mid-December) and again before the second session (mid-February).

Teaching of Tomorrow 2022 Session 1 Reflection on Learning Commitment to Change

Congratulations! We have reached the half way mark with the completion of Session 1. We covered a lot of ground, addressing learning in three domains: Knowledge, Skills and Values, in multiple settings with a varied group of learners. Here's a quick recap of the content:

- Using a framework for organizing teaching – the GNOME;
- Conducting needs assessments with our learners, using a range of questioning styles;
- Setting educational objectives;
- Effective and efficient teaching methods: modeling, facilitated discussions and the One Minute Preceptor; and
- Addressing racism and unconscious bias as clinical teachers

We ask you to take 5 to 10 minutes to think about your experience. What ideas appealed to you the most and were there any surprises for you?

Are there things you will STOP doing or START doing as a result of this session?

Please identify 1 to 3 specific, measurable changes (objectives) you will make in your teaching as a result of this workshop. Putting these changes in writing often helps us to actually do them. Be as specific as possible. For example, instead of saying that you will "improve your teaching," you might say that you will "ask learners to identify their needs".

We will send this form to you right after the workshop and check in with you in a few weeks to see how it's going.

Please complete your evaluations

- We really do use them!
