

Kathryn E. Bruzios, M.S.
Clinical Research Coordinator

Kat is a Clinical Research Coordinator within the Smelson Lab at the University of Massachusetts Medical School Department of Psychiatry. She is also affiliated with the Edith Nourse Rogers VA Medical Center in Bedford, MA. She joined the lab in 2016 after receiving her Master of Science in Clinical Psychology from Rivier University. As a part of the lab, Kat manages VA-based projects and is tasked with data collection, analysis, and assists with grant preparation. She is also a lead in creating adaptations of MISSION materials for MISSION teams to use during their implementation of the program. Kat is currently working towards her Doctorate in Prevention Science at Washington State University. She is a member of the Improving Research through Action (IMPACT) Lab, under Dr. Brittany Cooper. Her research interests include school-based prevention, dissemination and implementation science, evidence-based program adaptation, and translational research.